Since publication of the groundbreaking Encyclopedia of Housing in 1998, many issues have assumed special prominence within this field and, indeed, within the global economy. For instance, the global economic meltdown was spurred in large part by the worst subprime mortgage crisis we've seen in our history. On a more positive note, the sustainability movement and "green" development has picked up considerable steam and, given the priorities and initiatives of the current U.S. administration, this will only grow in importance, and increased attention has been given in recent years to the topic of indoor air quality. Within the past decade, as well, the Baby Boom Generation began its march into retirement and senior citizenship, which will have increasingly broad implications for retirement communities and housing, assisted living facilities, aging in place, livable communities, universal design, and the like. Finally, within the last twelve years an emerging generation of young scholars has been making significant contributions to the field. For all these reasons and more, we are pleased to present a significantly updated and expanded Second Edition of The Encyclopedia of Housing.

Ibor, Jerónimo Maillo 2009 The entry into force of the Lisbon Treaty poses anew the question of whether, from now on, it will be more likely for the European Union to use this mechanism, or, conversely, the new institutional, jurisdictional and decision-making framework may act as a containment of favourable trends in the development of variable integration formulas. In reality, flexible or differentiated integration instruments, within or outside of the framework of the EU, alongside strictly intergovernmental cooperation between certain EU countries, have existed since the beginning of Community integration.

Transit-Orte in der Literatur Lars Wilhelmer 2015-03-31 Hotelzimmer, Bahnhöfe, Flughafenterminals: Orte wie diese sind längst Teil unseres Alltags. Es sind Transit-Orte - Orte, an denen wir uns aufhalten, ohne zu bleiben. Marc Augé nennt sie »Nicht-Orte«, Peter Sloterdijk »Niemandsorte«. Nichts und niemand also, worüber es zu schreiben lohnte? Das Gegenteil beweisen zahlreiche Autorinnen und Autoren der literarischen Moderne, die Transit-Orte zum Gegenstand und zum Moment der Strukturierung ihrer Texte machen. Lars Wilhelmer zeigt: Im Zeitalter von Globalisierung und Mobilität bieten diese Orte, verschmolzen zu hyperkulturellen Transit-Räumen, das, was konventionelle Orte längst nicht mehr bieten können - einen Halt, eine Zuflucht.

Factors Related to Adoption Progress

Gerald E. Klomglan 1967 The study uses concepts related to adoption and diffusion processes to analyze the public's progress in adopting the idea of using public fallout shelters in the event of a nuclear attack. The analysis is based on data collected in the 1966 OCD National Survey of 1497 respondents. Respondents are assigned to one of five adoption stages; 21% of the respondents were unaware of the existence of public fallout shelters (Unaware stage); 20% were aware of public fallout shelters but had no additional information about them (Aware stage); 24% were aware of and had additional information but had not thought about using public fallout shelters (Information stage); 19% were aware of, had additional information, had thought about, but had not decided to go or not go to a public fallout shelter (Evaluation stage); and 16% were aware of, had additional information, had thought about and had decided to go to a public fallout shelter in the event of a nuclear attack (Adoption stage). The study also analyzes the relationships between stage of adoption and the following factors: (1) personal attributes, (2) perceptions of threat, (3) perceptions of Civil Defense, (4) perceptions of fallout shelters and (5) sources of information. Numerous statistically significant relationships were found between these factors and stage of adoption. Findings are compared with findings from the 1964 OCD National Survey. (Author).
